AGREEMENTS ATTACKED AT CONFERENCE

Indian Delegation Ambitious
For Recognition of Oriental Nations' Equality

MODIFICATION OF
PACTS IS URGED

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Sept. 9.—Any Anglo-American alliance to crush Japan would be viewed with suspicion even though India is strongly opposed to the Japanese attack on China, the British Commonwealth Relations Conference was told today by Pandit Kunru.

The Indian attitude was defined as one of hope that Japan and China both would develop and become strong, so they might join with India in winning recognition of equality from white races.

INDIA'S AMBITIONS
The conference, which began two weeks of unofficial private sessions here last Monday, was informed India now was establishing its own secondary and tertiary industries, which it wished to develop with Indian money.

At present economic interests in India were generally not under Indian control, but were subject to the overriding authority of the British Government.

In a general assault on the Ottawa trade agreements, the Indian representatives declared India was not prepared to support Imperial preference if that were established only for political reasons. Two-thirds of India's trade now is done outside the Empire, making expansion dependent on development of world trade.

URGENT MODIFICATION
Most delegates urged modification of the Empire trade agreements. Australian delegates contended those agreements had been merely an emergency measure against world deflation, inadequate as a basis for

THOUSANDS AT LAST SERVICE

Cardinal Hayes Buried in St. Patrick's Cathedral
At New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—In a gripping pageant of sorrow and majesty, the Roman Catholic Church gave its "last service today to the dead Cardinal Hayes—the pontifical Mass of Requiem.

He was buried in a crypt below the high altar of St. Patrick's Cathedral beside the bodies of those other princes of the church who had gone before him in the New York archdiocese, and the red hat of his cardinalate was pulled aloft and suspended high above the sanctuary to remain until it is crumbled by time.

Six thousand men and women and children—and 2,000 priests, monsignors and members of the hierarchy—filled the great cathedral.

THOUSANDS FILL STREETS
Along the streets outside, pressing against lines of police, stood other silent, uncounted thousands of every creed and faith, some of whom had been among the 300,000 who had filed through the cathedral since the cardinal's body was brought back here after his death last Sunday.

Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec was one of three princes of the church in attendance.

Loudspeakers carried the service to a hushed throng estimated between 75,000 and 100,000 that choked Fifth Avenue and other streets in the vicinity.

LOCOMOTIVE TOO
BIG FOR ROLLER

NORTH BAY, Sudbury, Sept. 9.—Divisional headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway today reported the Montreal-Vancouver train was delayed a few minutes this morning at Verrier on the line between here and Sudbury when the locomotive struck a fifty-ton steam roller on a trestle which had stalled on the tracks.

"It was a miracle the train was not derailed," officials stated.

REDUCED RATE AIDS REVENUE

Big Increase Seen in City
Waterworks Revenue for Past Eight Months

This summer's protracted drought and the inducement to use more water, offered in the form of lower charges for the summer months, have been responsible for an increase of over $12,000 in the revenue of the city waterworks system for the first eight months of the current year, as compared with the corresponding period in 1937, figures compiled yesterday by the office of the water collector show.

The total revenue derived from the Sooke Lake system and the Goldstream section was $252,759.18, this figure representing an increase of $12,127 over the revenue for the first eight months of last year. For the month of August, the revenue shows an increase of $7,656.

The Sooke Lake system during the eight months produced a total revenue of $135,146.24, as compared with $135,167.30 for the period from January 1 to August 31 last year. During August, the Sooke Lake system produced $31,793.59, as against $28,880.47 last year.

Revenue from the Goldstream section for the eight months amounted to $57,612.84, compared with $55,465.17 for the corresponding period of 1938, and for the month of August the revenue amounted to $9,443.99, as against $6,287.28.

MAYOR'S COMMENTS
Commenting upon the increase in revenue yesterday, Mayor Andrew McGavin remarked that the cheaper rate for water during the summer months had brought in more money, for it had encouraged the people to use more water.

The dry season this year had been largely responsible for the big increase in waterworks revenue, he said.

Mayor McGavin stated also that the reorganization of the water department had proved highly successful, and was responsible for a substantial saving.

So far as could be seen at present, no extensive repair work was necessary in the waterworks systems, the mayor said.

Official Estimate Shows Wheat Crop Largest in Six Years

Canadian Farmers Are Harvesting 358,400,000
Bushels—Biggest Gain in Saskatchewan—
Alberta Production Double Last Year's

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—Canadian farmers are harvesting and threshing the largest wheat crop since 1932, estimated at 358,400,000 bushels by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics today.

In its first estimate of field crop yields for 1938, the bureau reported higher production all along the line than last year, but the most marked improvement was in spring wheat in the three Prairie Provinces, which have suffered severely from drought in recent years.

While drought was not wholly absent this year, the bureau reported, it had moved north, and left none of the wide blank spots with no crops at all which dotted the map a year ago.

Estimated wheat production is nearly double the final estimate of the 1937 crop, which was 182,410,000 bushels. It is the highest production since 1932, when 443,061,000 bushels were harvested. Other key forecasts in today's report were: Spring wheat included in the

Counsel Says Man Facing

Kidnapped From U.S.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 9.—John Farris in police court today said he had "not been far from the truth" several weeks ago when he claimed C. E. Miller, alias Edward Buchanan, "had been practically kidnapped from Kentucky" and brought here for trial on a charge of theft of $50,000.

Miller is charged with stealing the money from an English visitor from Japan several years ago. Farris' counsel for Miller, told Magistrate H. S. Wood that a jailer and warden in Lexington, Kentucky, had been convicted on charges of contempt of court in allowing Miller to be released to Detective A. Plummer of Vancouver before a decision on the accused man's extradition had been handed down.

STRENGTHEN THEIR STAND

Important Developments in British Foreign Policy
Are in Evidence

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Prospects of a stronger stand against Germany in the Czechoslovak crisis gained substance today as Great Britain's "Inner Cabinet"—Prime Minister Chamberlain, Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, and Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer—held a long conference at 10 Downing Street.

The reports went unswayed in official quarters. All questions were parried with the comment: "Careful consideration is being given to all aspects of the situation." Beyond that, none would go.

INVITED TO CONFERENCE
However, two developments appeared to have more than passing importance. The first was an announcement that Clement Attlee, Leader of the Labor Opposition in the House of Commons, would see the Prime Minister tomorrow as a result of a letter from Mr. Chamberlain stating he would like to have a conference on the international situation.

At the meeting, Mr. Chamberlain may give his decision on the Labor Party's request that he summon Parliament. All indications tonight pointed to the request being turned down. Parliament normally meets on November 1 after the summer recess.

The second important development was that Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary, conferred with Lord Halifax at the Foreign Office. Mr. Eden resigned last February when he could not swing the Cabinet around to his policy of a stronger stand against the dictators and totalitarian states. He had not entered the Foreign Office since the day he moved out his personal papers.

SIGNIFICANT COINCIDENCE
Observers pointed to the coincidence that Mr. Eden's return to the Foreign Office for a conference with his successor came on the same day

SAY JAPANESE FORCE TRAPPED

Chinese Report Defeat of Column in Push Towards Hankow City

HANKOW, Sept. 9.—Chinese army headquarters said tonight that the Japanese column which had been moving toward Hankow along the Yangtze River was trapped and defeated yesterday at Kwangsi.

Military authorities said several thousand Japanese were cut off and remnants of the column forced into precipitous flight when Chinese forces, which had been falling back slowly, closed in from three directions.

Following up today, it was said, the Chinese occupied Kwangsi, about eighty miles southeast of Hankow, and pushed nearly twenty miles eastward to the environs of Hwangshui. At Hwangshui the Japanese were said to have rallied, attempting a new drive west.

Japanese press dispatches from Nanking quoted Japanese military authorities as saying 15,000 Chinese were slain and 1,200 captured in fighting around Kwangsi.

Women Being Sent Out of Hankow Area

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9.—With Japanese forces closing in on Hankow, Chinese provincial capital, 585 miles up the Yangtze River, Chinese military authorities today ordered evacuation of 20,000 women to facilitate defence of the Hankow area.

The women were ordered to proceed to Chungking, Chongqing Province, more than 600 miles farther inland, where the civilian branches of the Chinese Government already have been moved and where foreign embassies and legations have been located.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—More than 4,000 reindeer were counted by herders in the annual roundup of the Dominion Government's reindeer herd on Richards Island at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, according to wireless reports received by the Department of Mines and Resources.

Despite annual losses incidental to the life of a herd and the slaughter of surplus stock to provide food and clothing for local needs, the herd has shown a steady growth from the original 2,370 reindeer delivered to the Mackenzie Delta area in 1935.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—Concluding a check of stubs recording promissory notes allegedly issued by Cary Burns, fifty-five-year-old negro, police said tonight the evidence indicated the notes totaled at least $200,000.00.

Burns and his white secretary, Amelia Monique, alias Jackson, forty, appeared in police court today charged with conspiracy to defraud after being arrested in a downtown hotel. They were remanded a week without election, plea or bail. The arrest climaxed an investigation by police and better business bureaux in several Canadian and United States cities. Police claimed the notes covered a period of about two years and that Burns promised those lending

Way Cleared for Resumption This Morning at Prague by Suspension of Police Official—Plan Offered Said to Be Approved by British Mission of Mediation

Hitler Expresses Invincible Faith in Nazi Organization

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 9 (AP).—Czechoslovak-Sudeten German minority negotiations, derailed by disorders at Moravská-Ostrava, were revived tonight. A Government announcement the negotiations would be resumed tomorrow was accompanied by disclosure of details of concessions designed to satisfy the Nazi-backed, autonomy-demanding German minority.

The way for resumption of the negotiations, disrupted two days ago by disorders at the alleged horse-riding of a Sudeten deputy at Moravská-Ostrava, was cleared by suspension of a police officer of the border district where the incident occurred.

The Government's concessions, referred to as a counter-proposal to the Sudeten's eight-point demands for complete autonomy, provide for reorganization of the republic into self-governing cantons grouping together various nationalities.

APPROVED BY MISSION
The plan, said to have the approval of the unofficial British mediation mission headed by Viscount Runciman, would leave foreign policy, finances and national defence under control of the Central Government at Prague.

In the event of acceptance by the Sudeten, the plan would be submitted to Parliament for approval, thus refraining from any dictatorial establishment of a new governmental system.

Sudeten Deputy Ernest Kundi, for the moment the ranking Sudeten because Konrad Henlein and Deputy Karl Hermann Frank are at the Nuremberg Nazi Congress, said he was satisfied with measures taken

SOUTH AFRICAN CABINET SPLIT

Two Ministers Resign When Premier Announces Addition to Ministry

CAPETOWN, Sept. 9 (CP-Havas).—Before a House of Assembly, Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog today defended his appointment of A. P. J. Fourie as Cabinet member to represent the colored races in the Union of South Africa Government.

J. H. Hofmeyr, Minister of Mines, Education and Statistics, and F. C. Sturrock, minister without portfolio, resigned as a result of Fourie's appointment, charging Fourie knew little about native affairs, and was not qualified for the post.

The Prime Minister said there was no better proof of how much alone Hofmeyr stood in his view than that the overwhelming majority of the Cabinet did not agree with his protest.

ANXIOUS APPOINTMENT
The House session opened in a dramatic atmosphere. Hertzog, Minister Hertzog, in reply to a question, announced he had appointed Fourie a member of the Cabinet. Fourie was defeated in the recent general elections and, as a result, automatically ceased to be a member of the Government in July. The Cabinet split was first threatened when it was rumored that he would be appointed Senator, representing the colored races.

After driving he had not consulted with the former minister of mines, Hertzog declared.

"I have openly and repeatedly declared that I would, through a seat in the House of Assembly or through the Senate, see to it that Fourie came back, and if that could not happen I would know what to do."

Pick-a-Back Plane Being Groomed
For Hop From England
To Capetown

LONDON, Sept. 9.—It was reported unofficially tonight the pick-a-back plane Mercury is being groomed for a non-stop flight from Southampton to Capetown, a distance of about 6,000 air miles.

Reports current here are that the Mercury's Capetown flight would be for the purpose of testing huge fuel loading.

The Mercury, taking off from its mother plane the Maia in July, flew 2,244 miles from Fynes, Eire, to New York including a two-and-a-half-hour stop in Montreal, in twenty-five hours and five minutes.

Japanese Salmon Is Blamed for British Marketing Situation

Chairman of Manufacturers' Division Denies Wholesalers in England Unable to Obtain Sufficient Supplies in Canada

VANCOUVER, Sept. 9.—S. M. Rosenberg, canned salmon official, in a statement today charged that British importers who wished to use a cheaper Japanese product were responsible for the impression that wholesalers in England could not obtain sufficient supplies of canned salmon from Canada.

Mr. Rosenberg, chairman of the Canned Salmon Section of the British Columbia Manufacturers' Association, replied to statements made in Quebec yesterday by Hon. W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Euler said Canadian business was not taking advantage of the Dominion Government's advertising campaign, and named salmon as one advertised product unobtainable by wholesalers when he was in England.

Mr. Rosenberg said there was a group of British importers with extremely powerful connections in London and Liverpool, "who handle nothing but salmon packed in containers other than Canada."

IMPORTS UNLABLED

"In co-operation with foreign packers," he said, "they spend vast sums in Great Britain every year in advertising salmon under their own labels, which they import unlabeled. Then annual appropriation for this advertising runs as high as $750,000, half of which is paid by the packers."

Mr. Rosenberg said the Japanese product could be landed in England immeasurably cheaper than Canadian salmon, to the extent that it was sold at the preference of 10 per cent accorded Canada. Efforts had been made to have the basis for tariff assessment changed.

"In view of our lack of success in the campaign, approached the Federal Government to assist the industry by advertising in Great Britain with a view to educating the British consumer that if he or she wished an Empire product they should look for 'Canada' on the lid, because while all salmon goes into England unlabeled, that from Canada, and from Canada only, has the country of origin embossed on the top of the can."

The Federal Government agreed to our request and appropriated $25,000 for this purpose. All reports which reached us from trade commissioners and distributors indicated that this very modest advertising campaign was successful beyond all anticipation.

UNFORTUNATE IMPRESSION

"Obviously this result was at the expense of the importers of non-Empire salmon, who could not naturally be expected to accept the situation without trying to combat it. The unfortunate and erroneous impression which they have created in Mr. Euler's mind is one result."

As for the statement that there is no British Columbia salmon in England, the facts show that not only have our shipments during the first seven months of this year been substantial, but increasing quantities will move for the balance of the year out of this year's pack. British Columbia canners have a million cases of salmon on hand right now which they would very greatly like to sell in England."

by the Government at Moravská-Ostrava.

While Prague breathed more easily, the provinces were somewhat troubled. At Friedberg, on the German border, three policemen were injured when they tried to quiet a disorderly crowd singing forbidden Nazi songs.

At Bodeibak, some 3,000 Sudeteners stormed a hall in which Communists were meeting.

"CLOUDS ON HORIZON"

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 9.—Chancellor Hitler introduced an ominous note tonight for the first time in the eight-day Nazi party congress, which closes next Monday.

A reference to "clouds on the horizon," the unwillingness of Germany to accept any compromise, the Fuehrer's invincible faith in the Nazi organization—were themes of a sixteen-minute address to 180,000 political organizers, 100,000 spectators and millions of radio listeners.

His speech came at the end of a day in which the issue of Czechoslovakia's German minority overshadowed everything at the congress and compelled the Chancellor for the first time in years to cancel a scheduled speech.

DISAPPOINTED WOMEN

Instead of addressing 20,000 members of the Nazi Women's Auxiliary, he conferred with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop for more than an hour to hear what Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador at Berlin, had to say in a morning conference with the Foreign Minister.

Sir Neville and von Ribbentrop had met late in the forenoon and British circles close to their embassy said they were convinced the ambassador was charged with stressing that Great Britain automatically would be drawn into a conflict if France were a party to it.

Shortly before midnight Sir Neville cancelled a train reservation for Berlin and decided to remain in Nuremberg. A British Embassy spokesman said that he "may see Hitler Saturday."

Some German spokesmen were even saying the Sudeten question had gone beyond the autonomy stage and that Hitler would consider no solution short of union of the Sudeten region with Germany. There was no official confirmation for that belief.

CONFIRMED IN POST CANBERRA, Sept. 9 (CP-Reuters).—Reappointment of Stanley Bruce as Australian High Commissioner to London was officially gazetted yesterday. His new term is for five years. Mr. Bruce, a former Prime Minister of Australia, has held the London post since 1933.

The victim of the accident was employed up to the time of his death at the Blooded, Stewart & Welch camp at Port Alberni. He was of Swedish extraction, with friends in Vancouver, but no known relatives so far as the police have been able to ascertain.

South African delegates drew attention to South Africa's dependence on world gold prices and her exports of 20,000,000 pounds of fine wool to France and Germany.

From some British delegates came the suggestion the Ottawa agreements be done away with, to clear the way to help appease Europe by new trade agreements. Opinion was expressed the Ottawa agreements had impoverished Europe by transferring purchasing power to the Dominions. They also had proved an obstacle to a trade agreement with the United States.

MARKETS LIMITED

Delegates generally were agreed British markets were limited and unable to absorb all primary products produced by the Dominions. The Dominions were therefore in the position of having to find new markets, outside the Commonwealth.

JUDGING BEGINS

Judging of exhibits begins today and the major part of the adjudications will be completed before mid-week, so that patrons to the grounds will have an opportunity of seeing the prize winners in the various entries. Approximately $18,000 has been set aside for prize money.

Fair officials reported last night that practically all displays and exhibits were in place. The commercial displays will be fully staffed for the opening and there are many novel showplaces included in the avenues of miniature shops.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA'S PROBLEM

The problem before Czechoslovakia in dealing with the Sudeten German population is that its Government, like any Government, knows that a State within a State is not possible. The Czechs are prepared to give the Sudeten Germans a large measure of autonomy, but the central Government must maintain and direct the country's foreign policy, must have its own army and police; must demand allegiance to the State from the Sudeten Germans. The mission on which Lord Runciman is engaged is primarily to prove to the Sudeten Germans that they can find freedom and prosperity inside Czechoslovakia. The difficulty he is encountering is to persuade the German population of that State that there must be certain limits to the autonomy they enjoy.

The demands made by the Sudeten Germans are supported, perhaps inspired, by the German Government, or rather by the dictatorship in that country. Herr Hitler obviously is pulling strings behind the scene. He has not come out in the open to say what he believes is the solution of the Czechoslovakian crisis. He is, in fact, pursuing a policy of opportunism, perhaps in the hope that the Sudeten Germans will fall like a ripe plum into the hands of the Reich, through failure to reach any other solution. It is said that a large part of the feeling in the Sudeten areas is due to economic causes, one of which is the unemployment problem. To solve the latter problem it might be necessary to get financial assistance from outside quarters, though, so far as is known, no suggestion of this has been raised. Obviously, there is much going on of which the public in other countries is unaware. What Herr Hitler has learned during the past few weeks is that he cannot make any sudden coup to include the Sudeten Germans in the Reich without precipitating a European war, and Germany is not prepared for such an eventuality.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

It is estimated that within recent months there have been over 400 cases of frontier fighting between Soviet Red Army troops and Japanese forces on the Manchurian border. That is an illustration of how strained relations are between the two countries. The pile of corpses has been mounting for years. One recent development that will not help the situation is a Sino-Russian pact which grants the Comintern a free hand in China and gives the Soviet the right to develop Outer Mongolia. The quid pro quo for these concessions is the presence with the Chinese armies of Russian advisers, the shipment of supplies of war materials and other equipment to enable China to withstand the onslaught of the Japanese. This fact in the Sino-Japanese War will not be forgotten by Japan. That country has maintained all along that China is Communist in its outlook. The character of the help being given by the Soviet authority would seem to substantiate this outlook.

The Austral-Asian Bulletin, published at Melbourne, Australia, says: "It has been a common view of Japanese journals that the Soviet will be attacked just as soon as Japan reaches her Chinese objectives." If that is true, then such a happening will diminish the power of Russia as a factor in the developing situation in Central Europe. Russia, east and west, is bound by potential enemies, for if Japan became engaged in a war with the Soviet, Germany might well seize upon the opportunity of attacking her ancient enemy. The future in its dread possibilities holds more in store than may be foreseen as a result of the immediate problems that confront humanity.

ARTIFICIAL COSTS

There are a thousand and one cures offered for trade recessions, and few if any of them recognize the significance of facts. The matter is being discussed in the British Press, it has even engaged the attention of the British Association, that august body which deals with a greater variety of subjects than any other organization on earth, governments included. One suggestion to meet a trade recession is by the issue of new credit; another is to give, by the means of credit, a "national dividend." Members of the British Association, including Mr. Keynes, Professor Stapleton, Sir Daniel Hall, Mr. John Sargent and others, recommend governmental assistance or interference with trade. The general trend of all panaceas offered is to urge that someone else should help to pay for the ills by contributing to the pet objects which are the so-called "cures."

Mr. W. A. Tritton, a British commentator on trade recessions, says that faking of money values or subsidies for everyone, or universal pensions on the day of leaving school, are all easy, but temporary, ways of avoiding hard work. In writing on the situation in Great Britain he is outright in his estimate in saying:

"I, a manufacturer, see my export trade steadily declining because I am unable to compete in world markets, and it is better to recognize this instead of running all round the matter and talking of money and credits. Money is cheap and credit is ample for those who are worthy of it, so it burks the situation to attribute the decline to these matters."

A trader finds Government action constantly adding to his burdens. The new Factory Act is typical; holidays with pay, increases in taxation, sky-high rates have all added to costs, little by little, until the foreign buyer says he cannot pay our price, that while he admires our British scale of living he will not be a party to supporting our high standard, because he can get his goods cheaper elsewhere from those whose scheme of livelihood conforms more closely to his own. Steel, textiles, engineering, glass, all suffer from our inflated ideas of what we nationally demand in amenities in a shrinking world, but cash and credit are not to be blamed. We are merely non-competitive!

"Farmers are quite able to deal with their own problems if left alone. Their economic history of the last generation is made up of enforced inflated wages with subsidies as a partial get-off, trade boards, standards, and a whole rigmarole of quotas, rules, regulations, and restrictions, all in restraint of trade and all piling up the cost of farm produce. If some leading citizen could find a way of simplifying life and reducing the burden of artificial costs, trade would flow again naturally. Such a man would meet with national response and gratitude. Who will come forward?"

BORN IN 1815

A correspondent of The London Times has paid a visit to Ramonotwane, the oldest person in Bechuanaland, probably in Africa, and perhaps in the world, for he was born in 1815. The object of the visit was to assess his claim to longevity and to see what light he could throw on events and conditions of inner South Africa during the early part of last century. Interrogation of Ramonotwane showed that he was a small boy when Makaba was killed, the date of which has been fixed accurately at 1825. In the interview, the aged man gives accounts of fights in which he was engaged, and he seems to have had meritorious service from the time he was first impressed into the Matabele horde when it moved westward across the Transvaal before going northwards to what is now Rhodesia. It was in the service of Mzilikazi that he rose high, and in a critical period was selected as one of the men to guard the royal harem. The Times correspondent describes Ramonotwane as follows:

"He is tall though not over-sized, nor in any way ponderous; but attention is claimed by his features far more strongly than by his body. His face is strong, open, and dignified in its African way. Half the secret of his escape from the appearance of senility is that he has most of his teeth, including nearly all the front ones, and the other half is the spirit that animates him; it shines out in enthusiasm, humor, or pathos. The most noticeable thing about his massive head is a lump on his right temple, considerably larger than half a walnut—a hallmark of his calling and testimony to his exploits. It is the result of a blow with a war-club received over a century ago in the service of Mzilikazi, founder of the Matabele power, who left Zululand about 1817 after a sanguinary difference with his overlord, the despot Chaka. The large face of Ramonotwane is fantastically wrinkled, but in no way shrunken as faces so often are with the very old; the eyes, rarely sightless under the glaze of cataract, seem to look beyond time present and things visible."

INCLUSION

I have heard music and the long wave falling,
Where seas rejoice,
Wind in the trees and hidden thrushes calling:
In all thy voice,
I have seen jonquil-cups and weary roses,
The lily's grace,
Faint-burning streams and stormy sunset-clozes,
In all thy face,
I have had joy in pedges never spoken,
In stars above,
In marble beauty by the ages broken:
In all thy love,
Grosz Sterling, in The New York Times.

SILENCES

Away in shadowed depths of Summer woods,
Where through the noon of day no sound is heard,
A bush that throbs among the fragrant flowers
Sed, and the air, and mutes each singing bird,
And over the sleeping purple-breasted moor
A heat haze quivers far across, and tells How bees drop down, with honey sweetened clove,
And breathe, shake the heather's soundless bells,
And in the secret places of my soul I find Where no man enters, thoughts do dream; by
I stretch beyond this world of time and space,
And find in silence there that God is rich.

Note and Comment

by Sandham Graves

If "Mark Tapley," of Dickensian inventiveness and ingenuity, were abroad in the world today, as he is in the pages of "Martin Chuzzlewit," there would be a deal of credit for him in remaining "jolly" and for "coming out strong." Mark would look at the mobilization of a million men under arms in Germany, the standing-to of half a million men or so in border fortifications in France and Czechoslovakia, the great gathering of men, munitions and food, and would decide that here indeed were grounds for jollity and an opportunity to come out strong with all credit to himself. Unfortunately, the heroic but servicable Mark is not here. This column, after three hours of professional listening, can not come out strong for anything. In the late war—your pardon—three wars ago Germany jumped out of her borders, and was put back again. She swore revenge, against France, against Britain. She said, Gott Strafe England, German prisoners, captured at all stages of the four and a half years' conflict, said their defeat signified nothing—that the day would come. Even for war, one must have a motive. Germany is not threatened by Czechoslovakia, which is merely a small satellite in her eastern border. If, however, that satellite could be straightened, without an upset, and her eastern line fortified against all aggression, then Germany would be free to revert to her original intention. Der Tag would be nearer. So, at least, it occurs to this column.

What are the observable facts? Germany has made alliances, with a nuisance value, in three oceans. She has played wits against Cuba, and the other half is the spirit that animates him; it shines out in enthusiasm, humor, or pathos. The most noticeable thing about his massive head is a lump on his right temple, considerably larger than half a walnut—a hallmark of his calling and testimony to his exploits. It is the result of a blow with a war-club received over a century ago in the service of Mzilikazi, founder of the Matabele power, who left Zululand about 1817 after a sanguinary difference with his overlord, the despot Chaka. The large face of Ramonotwane is fantastically wrinkled, but in no way shrunken as faces so often are with the very old; the eyes, rarely sightless under the glaze of cataract, seem to look beyond time present and things visible."

Spain's Civil War
Sir, — Our attention has been drawn to a condemnation of the local radio station by a correspondent in The Colonist of Sunday, August 28. The newspapers are accused of being pro-Loyalist ("pro-Red"), and of misrepresenting "plain facts." We are similarly interested by Mr. Marston's recital of some "plain facts." He misjudges his countrymen when he infers that a natural and necessary butchery caused by rebel action is a sign of "Communist" leanings. The rest of the letter is equally fascinating.

In Mr. Marston's outline of the present of foreigners in Spain, there is a serious point open to question. He emphasizes the supposedly endless stream of men and munitions supplied to the legally-constituted Government by France and Russia. Yet he glosses over the immense quantity of munitions supplied by Germany and Italy to the insurgent cause. Also, he cannot see the difference between volunteers—fighting for an ideal—and drafted herds of conscripts pressed into foreign service.

It would seem that the news services of the world have been overlooking an important angle of the Spanish conflict. For does not Mr. Marston tell us of flagrant violations of the non-intervention pact? He accuses France of misquoting her Spanish frontier, and Russia of flying the British merchant flag on her ships going to Spain. It is our suggestion that these claims, if true, justify some mention in the newspapers. It does the claim that France and Russia are responsible for the first, and last, for the present struggle.

A point which is not clear to us is whether Mr. Marston includes in General Franco's Christian volunteers, the Moslem Moslems, whose special responsibility has proven to be one of pillaging, burning and slaughtering. And the atrocities of the Moslems, is it Christian to bomb helpless women and children? Is it Christian to massacre the Moslems? It is limited to the doubtful front, is it limited to the rebel forces, then why the prominence of Basque priests and laymen in the defence of that unfortunate republic? And why the ruthless bombing of Guernica, a holy Catholic town?

CLOSING DATE DRAWING NEAR

Registration Period for City Voters' List to Close September 30

Only three weeks remain for the registration of householders, and licensees for the completion of the city voters' list. Up until this year the registration period has been the months of September and October, but Provincial legislation at the last session set the period to comprise August and September, and drawn particular attention, therefore, is drawn to the fact that the registration period will close at 5 p.m. on September 30, and not on the last day of October, as heretofore.

Under the requirements of the regulations, the names of property owners in the city are automatically placed on the new list, and they are not required to register. Others who qualify for inclusion in the list are householders and licensees. Householders are those who are British subjects and have lived in the city since January 1, and have paid, in the case of men, the $2 road tax and the $5 poll tax, and in the case of women, the $2 road tax only, unless in any case the householder is entitled to exemption from these taxes. Those householders whose names appeared on the last year's list automatically have their names listed this year, provided they have paid the necessary taxes. However, if exemption from either tax is claimed, the householder must make a declaration at the city clerk's office.

Licenses who were on the list last year and who now hold licenses in good standing will be listed again automatically, but any whose names did not appear on last year's list and wish to be registered this year must make declarations.

Costly Meal
Roadside advertising across the line is often unusual in character. Near Tenino, Wash., we came across the following billboard: "Eat With Us Until You Bust. We'll Notify Your Relatives." "Daddy," asked the daughter of the Fort Street poet, "just where is Waterloo?" The poet explained it was in Belgium, and he had once visited the scene of the historical battle. "That's strange," the girl replied. "I always thought Waterloo was in England because teacher told us the Battle of Waterloo was fought on the playing fields of Eton." . . . Our tobaccoist friend informed us the expression "shifting for himself," today means that a young man is merely shifting gears on father's automobile. To Bill, the Broad Street barber, ailing the railway situation merely means opening a window on a day coach.—G.B.

Increased Traffic

An increase in the number of cars entering this city through the ports of Victoria and Sidney, from the United States, was registered according to statistics compiled by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, from official customs records. The figures are for the eight months of this year. Texas showed the largest increase when thirty-four more automobiles came here this year than last. The figures were 105 cars in 1937 and seventy-one in 1938. Three states had increases of fifteen, namely Colorado with 124 this year, and 109 last, Arizona with fifty-six in 1938 and forty-one in 1937. Smaller increases were reported from the remainder with Hawaii also showing a favorable number—W.F.

Plane Facts

During the past couple of months we have heard some harsh things said about the respective intelligence of those who balk at setting up a city airport. Immigrants have been banded back and forth which seem to convey the impression that Victoria is not an air-minded city. But if anyone wants to carry this little feather in his cap, let him remember a fact that will make him stop and think. During the past year no less than sixty-five youths have passed military and military qualifications here and have sailed for England and a career in the Royal Air Force. By the time the year is out observers here will have a real expert to reach 100 fads from Victoria alone. And when you consider that the grand total of Canadians now serving the air service reaches 400, it would seem that Victoria stands well to the forefront among the other larger centres in the Dominion.—J.A.M.

Glancing Over Sport

To win the United States horse-shoe pitching championship a new star has been a real expert. Hubert Trinkle of Indiana, won the amateur crown the other day and tossed some 500 shoes for 431 points. He had 335 rings and 105 double rings. . . . Paul Dean, younger of the once famous Dean brothers, is back in the big league with the St. Louis Cardinals. Just log his pitching arm will work it another big question mark. . . . Sport scribes laid the foundation stone so to speak at the Athletic Park the other evening for location of their new press box by climbing to the roof of the grandstand, to reach 100 fads from Victoria alone. Bill Pym, if plans go through as outlined the scribbles will have a spot with a telephone, heater for the winter months, a sliding window in front protected by strong netting so baseballs will not crash through it. And what a wonderful view a person gets from the roof of the stand. . . . Ralph Cuddeh, U.S. open golf champion, socks half a dozen balls out of the Seattle ball park the other night. He used a three iron and put them over right, centre and left field fences. Then he teed up a baseball and smacked it into centre field—J.D.

LONDON Oct. 9.—E. O. Hall, teacher at Central Collegiate, was nominated last night by Co-operative Commonwealth Federation as candidate in the coming Dominion election, made necessary by the death of Fred C. Bette. Co-operative. He is the first in the field.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

From The Daily Colonist of September 10, 1888:
Accident at Nicol Rock—The dredger employed at the work of blasting Nicol Rock in Nanaimo Harbor was the scene of quite an accident on Wednesday. The dredger was being used in hoisting the rock which had been blasted, when the shears gave way beneath the weight of the rock and were pulled off a spot. Later, with the scoop. Fortunately no one was injured but the damage to the hoisting gear and machinery will exceed $500.

Kills Huge Bear—Henry O'Brien, of this city, killed a huge bear on Sunday. He and a party of young gentlemen were out hunting deer in the mountains about three miles south of Goldstream house, and saw the bear chasing a deer. Mr. O'Brien let fly and hit it. The deer ran away and Mr. O'Brien killed the bear with the next shot. Leaving it in charge of the party, they went to look for the bear. After a hard chase brought it down. The bear, being too heavy to carry was skinned and the head cut off. At the station Mr. O'Brien received many congratulations on the success of his day's sport.

Battalion Drill—The three batteries of B.C.G. Artillery and the Victoria Rifle Company will parade at the drill shed this evening at 8 o'clock for battalion drill. It is understood that they will march out and go through the movements under the electric light as the drill shed is too confined to allow of these exercises being performed outdoors.

Stocks Drop in Nervous Market On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP).—Fears of possible developments in Europe over the week-end helped chill market sentiment today and leading stocks dropped 1 to more than 3 points.

Motor, steel and a wide assortment of industrial specialties led the decline.

The Associated Press average of fifty issues was off a full point at 47.8, the sharpest setback for a single session since August 29. Transfers amounted to 702,990 shares, compared with 568,920 the day before.

While most in Wall Street apparently felt that a general war outbreak overseas was unlikely, at least for the moment, brokers and speculative forces generally inclined to clear the decks of commitments over the Sunday shut-down.

An increase in bond trading today was at the expense of values in virtually all domestic groups.

The carriers losses ran to as much as 6.

Losses of a point or more were registered by Czechoslovakia 8 1/2, 31; Prussia 6 1/2; Copenhagen 4 1/2 and Belgium 5 1/2.

PERSONAL ITEMS and SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Fashion's Dictates Attractively Shown In Revue of Styles

Autumn Frocks, Coats and Hats; Afternoon and Evening Gowns Beautifully Modeled at Hudson's Bay Tea Sponsored by I.O.D.E.

SKIRTS are shorter; hats are higher in the crown, decidedly jaunty, and of two types—those worn forward revealing coiffured curls at the back, or worn back showing curls at front; feathers are definitely "in," and important for both sport and dressy millinery; day fabrics are of unparalleled variety for coats and dresses; evening things run to the exotic and glamorous; and there is infinite choice when it comes to color.

These are just a few of the highlights disclosed by the entertainingly and charmingly demonstrated 1938 Autumn modes shown at the Hudson's Bay Company's dining-room yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Robt. Burns McMillan Chapter, I.O.D.E.

About 225 ladies patronized the event, which once again attested the inexhaustible ingenuity and resourcefulness of fashion. Beautifully displayed by well-groomed models who knew to a nicety the precise angle at which a hat should be worn to look its smartest, the exact turn of shoulder or hip to reveal some subtlety of wrap, coat, dress or gown, the season's styles passed in tantalizing procession, effectively thrown into relief as they were seen on a raised platform, depicted a fluted white pillar and then descended and threaded their way among the guests.

ALL STYLES

The revue included sports frocks, sports coats, hats and accessories; afternoon gowns and coats; dressy coats and fur coats; evening gowns and cloaks; and children's wear, the smallest of these last captivatively shown by two winsome little maids, June Day and Lorraine Stocker. Joye Stocker wore the larger girls' sizes, and the older models were Miss L. Ackerman, Miss E. Bae, Miss L. Braithwaite, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Horford, Miss D. McGregor, Mrs. Shanks, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Williams.

In coats, the narrow, sleek silhouette was shown as definitely here for the Autumn; there was a "Burberry" London tailored sport coat, in Autumn leaf shades, worn with Autumn rust fur felt hat, and a black and hairy tared sport coat with platinum wolf collar worn with black velvet hat trimmed with ostrich feather. An English fleece coat in the new "Oxheart" shade, with beige wolf collar. Very new is the "Country Life" coat in the smart "Crofters" faced, a line handled exclusively by the Hudson's Bay Company. These imported coats are in a wide range of shadings in beautiful wool mixtures, the colorings both bright and soft. The fitted straight body line, with close-fitting hip, slightly padded shoulder, and in many cases, stole effect in fur trimming, dominated the sports type, but the box back, the sack back, the semi-fitted, the tubular were also shown here as in the semi-dress models.

SLEEVES

While the neat tailored sleeve and slightly padded shoulder prevailed, variations in the better coats included the full draped sleeve with tight cuff, and there were also shown coats with bell-shaped sleeve.

MUCH BRAIDING

Very noticeable in the display was the amount of braiding and woven embroidery for morning and all-occasion day dresses. It appeared in the jerskins particularly but was also much seen as all-over trimming of the bodice part of the sports and afternoon frocks, and as trimmings for pockets, cuff, neckline, etc., occasionally forming little ruffles at the top of the sleeve.

The favored materials for afternoon frocks are jacquard crepes and the new Macle Hour crepe, the latter slightly suggestive of a very soft velvet. A Robt. Burns McMillan model dress, modeled by Miss Ackerman, was of the subtle new teal blue, and skillful color combination was effected in the little wine-colored hat.

AFTER FIVE FROCKS

Coming into the more sophisticated realms of the "after five"

Is Now Visiting in England Ganges Dance

Is Successful

MISS BERYL HYNDMAN

Daughter of Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. J. C. F. Hyndman, Falkland Islands, who is visiting her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hillman, the New Forest, England. Mr. Hillman is, of course, Elsom, of "Elsom and Jessam" fame, and Mrs. Hillman was formerly Mona Misener, a Victoria girl who, after great success on the amateur stage here, took up the drama professionally, and won high encomiums on the London stage.

Some of the costumes modeled, including the formal floor-length gown of black tulle and black velvet, both well shown by Miss D. McGregor, a vanity model in satin back crepe, combining black and red, and a dress, receiving added zest from the black felt doll hat, with red ostrich trim, the gold-trimmed friar dress of Jacquard crepe modeled by Miss Braithwaite, "dragonfly" shade, hooped gown, trimmed with fringe, worn by Mrs. Horford, and the charmingly dignified black model dress, trimmed with fringe and antique gold, worn by Mrs. Cummings.

DINNER AND EVENING

For dinner and evening wear, velvets, of course, were in the ascendency, and the claim is that these are practically crease-proof as well as exquisitely soft and drape. Taffetas and laces were also shown to be important, either alone or in combination with velvet.

Although it is not a material so much as a distinctive manipulation of a material, "lattice quilting" made an instantaneous impression in a seductive model evening dress in carmen shade, worn by Mrs. Shanks. This "quilting" is ingenious, resembling nothing so much as very beautiful old-fashioned quilting on a dress.

Dinner gowns were shown with high necks and short sleeves, slim fitting skirts and coats, those last elaborately trimmed with gold embroidery or sequins. Nearly all the models showing evening gowns wore their hair high, brushed up from the nape of the neck into curls at the crown of the head. Combs, ornaments, pins, metallic leaves, occasionally diminutive bonnets of tulle or smaller flowers, were worn with the coiffure.

The procession of evening things began with the bias-cut, wide skirted redolent in the new "Marcel" shade, modeled by Miss Ackerman. Mrs. Shanks followed in a beautiful bouffant evening gown, combining black taffeta and velvet and the peak of the train appeared in an old gold tulle, full-flounced Colonial style, trimmed with Autumn-tinted flowers, worn by Mrs. Wilson.

Other highlights in the procession were the striking Egyptian model of white satin, with gold sequin, applique and Sari, or hosi, worn by Miss Braithwaite, the formal white imported lame gown, with all-over bridal rose design in silver, worn by Mrs. Horford; a sophisticated black taffeta, with deep velvet hem and gold-embroidered bolero, emphasizing the "Argentine" influence, worn by Miss Ackerman; and the black and silver three-piece dinner gown worn by Mrs. Wilson. The use of fringe was happily demonstrated in the Spanish hooped gown of white Macle Hour crepe, worn by Mrs. Cummings, and a Colonial dress, artfully with hoops, and of Chinese jade taffeta, climaxing the showing of evening gowns.

EVENING WRAPS

Tulle followed a display of evening wraps in floor-length black velvet, in three-quarter length white lapin, and sometimes with hood or upright Elizabethan collar, but always luxurious looking.

The children's shop display indicated that even the small "Toys" styles come under the influence of the evening-skirt, bolero and other tendencies prevalent among fashionable for the older people. Short puffed sleeves and swing skirts in a taffeta party frock, swing skirt in a row petal taffeta, Scandinavian embroidery on a white broadcloth button-on blouse style and double breasted for the scarlet velvet coat—all for size 6. For size 4 were shown a three-piece teal blue wool suit, pleated skirt; a thickdown taffeta party frock with puffed sleeves and swing skirt; and a three-piece Italian blue coat with off-tape hat and leggings. The size 14 models included British tan spun rayon dress and a navy wool crepe Durand dress and

About 100 guests were present recently at the Mahon Hall, Ganges, when the president and members of the Islands Farmers' Institute organized a dance for the purpose of raising funds towards the purchase of a new piano for the hall. The decorations for the occasion were attractively carried out in paper streamers of green, deep mauve and yellow, the electric lights all being softly shaded in the same coloring.

A three-piece orchestra from Victoria supplied the music. Supper was served under the management of the Ganges Women's Institute, the committee in charge including Mrs. N. W. Wilson, Mrs. W. A. Palmer, Mrs. H. Johnson, Mrs. A. Campbell, and Mrs. Littlefair. The supper tables were "arranged" in streamers of pale pink and deep rose, sweet peas of similar shades forming the floral part of the decoration. When all expenses were paid, over $22 was cleared, the sum to be placed towards the piano fund.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Tuberculosis Veterans' Post No. 18, was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Clark, 383 Sunset Avenue, on Thursday, with the president, Mrs. Burnett, in the chair and a splendid attendance of members. Plans for the hope chest, which will be at the next meeting, were discussed. Mrs. Clark, general convener, and all members helping. The treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Smith, gave an excellent account of the W.A. finances and was thanked for her report. Reports on the recent card parties were given by the various committee chairmen and all were thanked for their efforts in the branch's behalf. The secretary was instructed to write to the parent branch, the T.V.A., and thank the association for giving the W.A. such a splendid time at the picnic on July 28 at Mount Douglas Park and hope that the same will be repeated next year. The annual birthday party will be held in the T.V.A. clubrooms on September 28. This is to commemorate the official opening of the T.V.A. clubrooms, and the branch having a clubroom of its own. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Austin, William Street, on the regular day, October 20, at 2 o'clock sharp, and members are reminded to bring in all their contributions for the annual bazaar, which will be held in the Tuberculosis Veterans' clubroom on October 22 so that the various staff holders can arrange their sales early on Saturday. The delegate to the recent convention gave the official report from the provincial branch and was thanked.

Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Irene Gandy was the guest of honor at a no-hostess shower, on Wednesday, given by the girls of the motor license office, and held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Winterbottom, 76 Moss Street. Upon arrival, the guest was presented with a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and sweetheart roses. The many lovely gifts were concealed in a large truck decorated in mauve and pink, and symbolic of the work of which the bride-elect has been engaged in for a number of years. A social evening was spent and a buffet supper served from a table decorated with mauve and pink streamers attached to place cards in the form of the provincial police station hats. Mauve tapers and a silver container of pink carnations completed the table decorations. Among the invited guests were Mesdames M. Gandy, P. Moore, S. Winterbottom, N. Brayshaw, J. McAlister, G. The decorations in the reception rooms were carried out in a cream and pink color scheme with a profusion of gladioli. A corsage bouquet of pink roses was presented to Miss Mann upon her arrival. The many pretty and useful gifts were found round and under a large wedding bell trimmed with ruchings of crepe paper in the prevailing colors. Mrs. S. S. Pearce and Misses Mann, Mann, Peggy Silburn and Judy Pearce won prizes for their cleverness in the amusing games which were played. A buffet supper was served later from an attractively-laid table, with cream, green and mauve streamers falling from the chandelier to each corner. Dick, Miss M. Lattanz and Miss N. Pynn, the Misses Betty and Mary Pynn winning the consolation awards. Weddings

BROWN-TALBOT

The Garden City United Church was the scene last evening of a pretty wedding when Rev. William Allan officiated at the marriage of Violet Ethel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Talbot, 2548 Blanshard Street, and Mr. Jack Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Brown, Whiteside Avenue, Saanich, the church being beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of autumn flowers.

In the unavoidable absence of her father, the attractive bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Walter Talbot, and wore a becoming frock of beige and wine-colored fabric, with a short jacket and suede trimmings. Her off-the-face hat was beige and her accessories matched, and she wore a corsage bouquet of roses. Miss Gertrude Bretherton was her cousin's bridesmaid, in a becoming wine-colored ensemble with white accessories, who wore a corsage bouquet of roses. Mr. William Brown, brother of the groom, was best man. During the signing of the register, Mrs. M. Pebernati sang "Still as the Night," accompanied by Jack Allan, who also played the wedding marches.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Talbot, wearing a maroon-colored gown with matching accessories, and Mrs. Brown, in a grey tailored suit with white accessories, received the guests. The reception-rooms were beautifully decorated with gladioli and asters, and a three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table, which was decorated with vases of roses. The many lovely gifts were displayed on a large table covered with a hand-made lace cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their home in Victoria.

NEILL-HAWKINS

Owing to the recent death of the bride's father, the marriage of Miss Ruth Hawkins, youngest daughter of Mrs. E. Hawkins, 3228 Albion Road, and Mr. Robert Thomas Neill, third son of Mrs. M. G. Neill, 1441

Edwards Avenue, was held last night at the home of Rev. and Mrs. T. H. McAllister, 4044 Ellery Street, at 8:30 o'clock. Mr. McAllister read the service, during which the bride and groom stood in a bay-window banked with autumn flowers and streamers.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Albert Hawkins, and wore a pale blue flowered dress with black accessories, and was attended by Mrs. Jack Smith, in a black flowered dress with white accessories. They wore corsage bouquets of white and shell pink carnations. Mr. Smith was best man. Mr. Robert Truesdale played the wedding march as the bride entered the room.

Many lovely gifts were displayed on a table covered with a flower-bedecked table in an alcove in the dining-room. After a honeymoon tour on the island, for which the bride left in a pale blue flowered dress and accessories to tone, Mr. and Mrs. Neill will make their home on the George Road.

THE ODDS

Wife: Present-day clothes for women have a "splendid finish" haven't they, darling? Husband (tracing fan): Yes, but the starting price is terrible.

Will Return Here After Honeymoon in the South

At a largely-attended wedding solemnized in St. John's Church at 8:30 o'clock last evening, Rev. Arthur Bischlager officiated at the marriage of Elsie Violet, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Findlay, 2618 Blanshard Street, and Mr. Cyril Eric Carter, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Carter, Woodley Road. Mrs. Grace Deaville presided at the organ, and as the register was signed Miss Elsie Jones sang "For You Alone."

The charming bride, who was given away by her father, wore a frock of white lace over tulle with a short-sleeved bolero, and an embroidered net veil arranged beneath a halo of orange blossoms and worn over a long train of tulle. Her only jewelry was a pearl lavalere, the gift of the bridegroom, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and carnations.

THREE ATTENDANTS

Miss Pearl Findlay, the bride's sister, was maid of honor in a primrose-frook of pale blue chiffon over tulle with short puff sleeves, and Mrs. George Barber, in ice-blue net over tulle, and Miss Louise Kraft in a similar frock of gold chiffon, were the other attendants. All three wore lovely Juliet caps of tulle and fresh roses, and carried shower bouquets of baby chrysanthemums and gladioli in blending shades.

Mr. Scott Dempster was best man, and escorting the guests to pass tied with posies of asters and white satin ribbon, were Mr. Frank Findlay and Mr. George Barber.

RECEPTION HELD

About seventy-five guests were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Findlay at their home after the service in a lovely setting of flowers arranged by Mrs. M. Jones and Misses B. and E. Jones, with gladioli and chrysanthemums predominating. During the reception the happy couple stood beneath an arch of cedar boughs and ferns, banked with baby royal dahlias and gypsophila. Mrs. Findlay was handsomely gowned in navy blue flowered silk with a lady beatrice hat and navy accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of red roses, and the bridegroom's mother, who also wore a navy blue floral gown with blue accessories, had a corsage bouquet of blush roses.

A lace cloth covered the supper table, which was lighted with pink tapers in silver holders and centred with a three-tiered cake standing between vases of pink roses.

Mrs. Adjutant Watt will speak at tomorrow morning's meeting in the Salvation Army Citadel, Broad Street, on "The Lord Is at Hand" (The Citadel Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Max Chalk, will be in charge of the afternoon meeting which will be bright with music and song. Adjutant Watt will give the evening address, his subject being "The Foundation, Plan and Purpose of the Church."

What Today Means

"VIRGO"

If September 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. from 3 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 9 to 11 a.m. from 3 to 7 p.m. and from 10 to 11 p.m. It will be exceedingly unwise this day to expect anyone to do anything that you would hesitate doing yourself. Jumping to conclusions, especially if you only hear part of a conversation, is likely to be the principal cause of most of this day's misunderstandings and quarrels. Don't allow your attention to be distracted from any important work you are engaged in. Bewilderment and confusion apparently will result in a lack of power to concentrate. Unnecessary noises or continuous chattering should not be tolerated. You may have an impelling desire to do some kind of charitable act this day, and if you do experience it, try not to resist the urge. Guard against letting your own interests, congenial companionship or essential to your happiness. Through your special activities you are likely to find the means of advancing your influence in some very advantageous manner. You will find it in your power to develop a very analytical mind that should be cheerful and entertaining if help you greatly in furthering some ambition. It will be a mistake to be too modest about your accomplishments, and poor judgment to appear egotistical about any of them. Through writing, acting, teaching, publicity work or music

your results ought to be gratifying.
If you have married for love and not for wealth, you may never have any justifiable complaint to make for doing so.
The child-born on September 10 is destined to possess many virtues and desirable traits of character. This youngster is likely to have the happy faculty of feeling at home everywhere. The chance is that Lady Luck will make this youngster one of her proteges.
If a man and September 10 is your natal day, a good disposition, plenty of energy, courage and worthy aspirations are likely to reap a rich reward. As an agricultural manufacturer, broker, financier, author, educator, doctor, lawyer, professional, entertainer or efficient expert, your achievements may make your family and friends exceedingly proud of you.

Chicago Club Now Three and One-Half Games Behind Pace-Setting Pirates—Dodgers Trim Giants, 7-1—Gehrig Celebrates 2,100 Consecutive Mark in American League

The iron horse, Lou Gehrig, steamed past the 2,100-mark in his record consecutive game playing streak yesterday, and staged a one-man celebration as the New York Yankees nipped the Senators 2 to 0 before a ladies' day crowd of 11,000.

Of course, Bump Hadley, with an eight-hill shutout for his ninth victory of the year, played a big part in the celebration. But his was more or less an assisting role to the "hoss" who took advantage of the occasion to clout four hits and climb past the 300 hitting mark for the first time this season.

In fact, Lou collected all but one of the total of five Yankee safeties.

The victory, coupled with the defeat for Boston and Cleveland, left the Yankees fifteen games in front of the American League race, and in a spot where they now need only nine victories or any combination of wins and Red Sox or Indian defeats to make that total—to clinch the pennant. The win also marked the official mathematical elimination of fourth-place Detroit from the race.

Hank Greenberg's forty-seventh home run paced Detroit's Tigers to an 11-5 victory over Cleveland, keeping the Indians in a second-place tie with Boston's Red Sox. Four Cleveland errors helped the Tigers and sped the retirement of Willis Hudlin.

ELEVENTH VICTORY

It was Tommy Bridges' eleventh victory of the season against eight defeats.

A delay in the delivery of three telegrams concerning Bill Werber's three-day suspension, which the Athletics' fiery third baseman, however, were not received by Werber, Manager Connie Mack or Umpire George Moriarty until after the game.

Although Werber, whose bat accounted for half of the Athletics' winning four-run rally in the eighth, was officially ineligible, the Red Sox management said no protest would be made, and that the game as far as the Boston club was concerned, would stand as a Philadelphia victory.

St. Louis, at Chicago, was postponed on account of rain.

Freddy Fitzsimmons, who was "kicked downstairs" to Brooklyn by the Giants last year, came back to plague Bill Terry again by hurling the Dodgers to a 7-1 victory over his old mates in one of the scheduled National League games.

Fitz, who went to the Dodgers along with $20,000 in exchange for Tom Baker, allowed nine hits as he chalked up his second straight win over the Giants and his tenth victory of the season.

Claude Passeau held the Boston B's to six hits to pitch the Phillies to a 4-2 victory.

Clay Bryant recorded his sixteenth victory of the year as the Chicago Cubs set the Cardinals down for the third time in as many days by a score of 4-2. It was the Cubs' sixth straight win.

SHANDLEY TO LEAD LOCAL CAGE SQUADS

Re-elected President at Annual Meeting—Entries Close Sept. 26

Frank Shandley, well-known figure in local cage circles, who assumed the office of president of the Victoria and District Basketball League about half way through the 1937-38 season, was last night re-elected at the annual meeting held at the YMCA. Fourteen clubs were represented.

Gordon Woodridge, vice-president of the British Columbia Basketball Association, was named to the same position with the local body, and Wally Yeamans, secretary, was returned to office for another year. Ernie Harris, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was the choice for treasurer. George Gordon, a member of last season's executive and Jim Hall were appointed to the executive committee.

President Frank Shandley was chosen to represent the local organization at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Basketball Association, and Secretary Wally Yeamans was again named delegate to the Vancouver Island Basketball Association.

SUBMITTS REPORT

In submitting his report on the past season's activities, President Shandley paid tribute to the executive for their fine work, and expressed his thanks to all who had helped the league. The general head of the organization complimented the teams on reaching the British Columbia finals, and in conclusion asked support for the incoming executive.

Wally Yeamans, who occupied the post of secretary and treasurer last season, lauded the intermediate "A" boys' cage squads for their fine play and stated that the league was one of the best in the history of basketball in this city. From a financial standpoint the league was not a great success. The inability of the teams to draw supporters during the week exhibition games were played was responsible for this condition, in the opinion of the official.

TWO ASSOCIATIONS

The meeting went on record in favor of a motion to be presented at the B.C.A.A. meeting at Vancouver, calling for the division of Vancouver Island into two associations. Traveling expenses, and going over the same territory twice, created quite a hardship to Victoria teams in the island play-offs, speakers stated, and this unsatisfactory situation would be eliminated by the proposed change.

The delegates gave their support to a move to have the president and the secretary of the provincial body in Victoria for the next season, and the delegates of the B.C.A.A. parley was instructed to do all in his power to swing the vote for the new set-up. These offices have been held by Mainland officials since the organization of the provincial body and sponsors of the motion felt that Victoria should be considered this year.

Clubs were informed that entries will close on Monday, September 26, when the league will hold another meeting at the YMCA. It was brought out at the parley that no copies of the constitution of the Victoria and District Basketball Association are in existence and the executive decided to take steps to have a new constitution drawn up for presentation at the next meeting.

Letters to Editor

MAKES SUGGESTION

Sports Editor—Sir: I am writing this letter after a thorough canvass of a large group of men and women who call themselves ordinary working-class people—age-earnings.

They are not racing fans, in that they do not follow horses through-out the season, but they all like to have a day or two at the Willows track, backing horses only if they can see them run.

Without exception they are of the opinion that they would enjoy more sport, and probably the association would make more money, if they could buy two tickets for two dollars, and the ever-popular three-dollar combination is really three one-dollar bets.

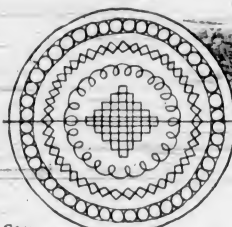

Many of these men and women have had wonderful Saturday afternoons in olden days on English tracks, paying no admission fees and placing shilling and half-crown bets. Half a sovereign ($2.50) often was enough to go racing with.

By the time the races come to the Willows the holidays are over and the tourist has gone home. Surely it would be good business to cater to the wants of your local working folk in this respect.

Has the idea ever occurred to the association? PERCY C. PAYNE, 244 Richmond Road, Victoria, B.C., September 9, 1938.

Sport Fishing on Vancouver Island

Allcock Trophy Competition—Roger Monteith Hooks Thirty-Pounder—Coho Fishing Excellent

Nine anglers, one woman and eight men, successful in the three earlier competitions staged this season by the Victoria-Sanibel Inlet Anglers' Association, will go in quest of the coveted Allcock Shield tomorrow at Brentwood. The event, the final derby of the season, will get under way at 8 a.m. and conclude at 12 noon. Those qualified to compete are: Bob Redgrave, C. Parnell, W. A. Pendergast, H. Holland, L. Gelling, J. McCallan, C. H. Unwin, R. Fleming Jr., and Mrs. L. McCallan. The shield was won last year by Wiston Holland.

Reports from Brentwood scene of tomorrow's final event, are encouraging. During the week some fine salmon were landed, with Mrs. Gordon Hards, Victoria, enthusiastic hooking a twenty-one-pounder and leading the week's catches. Bond name of the planer bearing his name, a fishing device being used by many fishermen, made a catch of seven, including Thursday, the largest being seventeen pounds. Another angler landed five, his finest specimen weighing fifteen pounds.

Roger Monteith, well-known local sportsman, informs us that a number of the spring are being caught at Cowichan Bay. Roger had heard considerable about the large catches, so he went up himself early Thursday morning and returned with a thirty-pounder. The salmon was on display in front of his View Street store yesterday and was admired by many passers-by.

ORGANIZATION WILL MEET OFFICIALS TO DECIDE FINAL PLANS

Victoria Fraternal Association Decides to Enter Strong Eleven in Circuit This Season—Will Approach B.C. Football Commission Next Week at Meeting to Be Held in City

Victoria football fans are going to have the opportunity of witnessing some of the best brand of soccer seen in this city for many years, following the announcement yesterday by officials of the Elks Club that the organization has decided to seek a franchise in the British Columbia Inter-City Football League. Next week Victoria football officials, connected with the Elks Club, will meet the members of the British Columbia Football Commission and ask them for a spot in the Inter-City League, which, no doubt, will be granted.

Players connected with the newly-formed club will play throughout the schedule for the Elks only and not in the First Division of the Victoria and District League as has been the case in previous years.

when an all-star eleven represented the Capital City in the circuit. This means that Victorians will see an inter-city match about every fortnight and, not every month or six weeks as in the past.

This club will also be in a position to seek the Canadian championship and make a good showing, stated one of the spokesmen yesterday. He also stated that some of the inter-city team of last season would be playing, and that new blood would be injected, with young players being given the opportunity to gain a place on the line-up.

The Elks Club will be playing in the same league as New Westminster Royals, North Shore United, Saint Andrews, Saint Savours, all of Vancouver, and Seattle, a city which will be represented in the circuit for the first time in history.

It was directed by Henry Hathaway, who brought "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "Souls at Sea" to the screen.

HANDFUL OF STARS

CHAPTER V

It was five-thirty. Lyle put down her pencil and reached for her bag and gloves. Looking in at Suzanne's office she smiled at her, thinking "She knows I'm going to meet Jeff." In the dressing-room she pulled the blue turban over her hair and hurried to the elevator.

Stephen Tennant towered above everyone else. Seeing him as she stepped on, Lyle gave him a quick little smile and then faced the door. "I'll be his house guest. He looks so strong and steady. I don't think anything could shake him."

She hurried along the thickly peopled street. Where would they have dinner tonight? Every night it had been a different place. "Tonight is moonlight," she thought. "We'll ride away out into the country. We won't say very much. But we'll know we're thinking of each other and how happy we are."

Jeff had been waiting beside his car for ten minutes when he saw Troy Fallon, small, dark, and dressed in brown. Suddenly he felt helpless. There was no way to avoid her; she had seen him and was coming toward him.

He had neither telephoned Troy nor seen her since he had known Lyle. He had told the girl in his office that he was out of the office if Miss Fallon called. The girl reported that Miss Fallon called several times, had called so often, in fact, that of late she refused to give her name, but the girl knew her voice. Often late at night the telephone in his apartment had rung and he let it ring, knowing it was Troy.

"He thought now, 'I've got to get rid of her before Lyle gets here. She'll love putting on an act and she won't care who hears her.'"

"Hello, Jeff," Troy said. "Now isn't it odd that I should park my car in this lot today?"

"Yes. How are you, Troy?" trying to be casual and hoping that Lyle would be delayed, that the traffic lights would all be red. She looked at him steadily. "Let's not pretend, Jeff. I've called your office and your apartment, but you wouldn't talk to me. Whoever she is, I feel sorry for her and the hard bump she'll get later." She shook her head. Her vivid mouth was twisted and bitter. "But we won't have any post-mortems. I'm not pursuing you to remind you of what we've been to each other. I want my letters, Jeff. The letters I wrote you."

He stared at her. "Your letters?" "Yes. I don't want them around for my successor to read. I don't want anybody to know me that well. Besides, I'm a very rich girl, Jeff. Now do you understand?"

"Do you think I'd ever want to sell those letters back to you? What kind of..."

"Let's not go into that now, please. I want my letters. You told me you had them. You told me you had every one, that you couldn't bear to destroy them."

"I'll send them to you tonight. Without fail. You may depend on it."

But she shook her dark head. "No. You're so elusive I can't let you get away from me now. We're going over to your apartment now, Jeff. In your car. I'll get a taxi back."

"I can't, Troy. Listen... I'm waiting."

"For her. Yes, I know. But she can wait. She'll learn to wait for you anyway. I'm not kidding, Jeff. I want those letters now."

Lyle stood still in the centre of the driveway, looking for the familiar grey coupe, looking with such concentration that she failed to hear a car turning into the parking lot. Suddenly an arm reached out and jerked her aside. It all happened in a moment. But when she regained her balance, people had passed on the street to stare and she realized she had come within inches of being run down.

The driver of the car, his face white, thrust his head out the window and cried angrily, "Haven't you better sense than to stand in the middle of a driveway?"

Lyle was bewildered. Her heart was beating wildly against her ribs. She swayed, saw the buildings move.

Stephen Tennant put his arm around her as he would have around a frightened child.

"You're all right," he said. "Pull yourself together."

Tennant kept his arm around her until she ceased to tremble. From the store he had kept a few paces behind her knowing it was to Jeff she was hurrying. He smiled when she did not let red traffic lights delay her. He knew why she had stopped in the driveway oblivious to everything. It was because Jeff had not been there. She had almost been killed because Jeff had not been there.

Embarrassed still frightened, Lyle said after a while "Thank you for saving my life."

that a large section of the press was urging the Government to tell Hitler plainly what might be expected from Britain were he to march into Czechoslovakia.

The official explanation of Mr. Eden's visit referred to his return from Elze, where he spent a holiday, and his natural desire to be informed on latest developments.

It was announced the report of Major Sutton Pratt, who investigated the Moravia Ostrava "riding crop incident," which resulted in suspension of negotiations between the Czechoslovak Government and the Sudeten Germans, "seems to indicate the incident has been exaggerated." Official quarters here declined further comment on the nature and extent of the report.

FULL CO-OPERATION

Official circles parried all questions, though it was admitted there has been the fullest co-operation between London and Paris, including full information of French military precautions.

Similarly British authorities declined to comment on reports from Paris that the Daladier Government was seeking an out-and-out statement of Britain's intentions in the event of conflict over Czechoslovakia.

Observers saw indications Britain did not want to repeat the tragic decision of 1914 when the Kaiser believed Britain would stay neutral long enough for Germany to defeat France and Russia. The purpose of a warning now would be to let Germany know clearly what to expect before any military steps were taken. The full Cabinet will meet on Monday, a few hours before Chancellor Hitler is expected to speak at Czechoslovakia at Nuremberg.

WHEAT CROP IS BEST IN YEARS

total, 338,396,000 bushels against 183,721,000 in 1937. Spring wheat in the Prairie Provinces, 334,000,000 against 159,000,000. Fall wheat, 20,397,000 against 18,889,000.

Oats, 393,021,000 against 268,442,000.

Manitoba's wheat production shows little change from last year, when that province harvested a fair crop. It is placed at 50,000,000 bushels against 48,900,000 last year.

SASKATCHEWAN CROP

But Saskatchewan will have more than three times the amount harvested last year, and Alberta nearly double.

Saskatchewan's wheat yield is placed at 143,000,000 bushels against 37,000,000 last year, and Alberta's at 141,000,000 against 74,000,000.

Although the forecast indicated the best crop since 1932, it was only 30,000,000 bushels above the ten-year average of Canadian wheat production. The average for the period from 1928 to 1937, inclusive, was 329,761,000 bushels.

The United States Department of Agriculture today placed the American crop at 939,972,000, somewhat higher than previous estimates. It also was well above last year's production, which totaled 873,989,000 bushels.
